Civics education promotes interdisciplinary, contextual learning, so it needs to be integrated across the curriculum.

For example, history class offers opportunities to discuss how the Indian Freedom Struggle led to the growth of Indian Constitutionalism and the underlying ideologies and how the very same institutions of the Republic have changed their role over time from being a Colonial State to a Sovereign Democratic Republic.

Mathematics class offers chances to explore voting rates among different segments of the population—and the potential impact on policy when certain populations are disenfranchised.

And don't forget media literacy, which helps students make sense of the videos, stories, and news clips with which they are continually bombarded.

How is the Nominee Civics Teacher facilitating such an interdisciplinary learning?

Present upto 7 such concrete examples of interdisciplinary learning taking cue from a CIVICS Classroom to that of Other Frontiers of Learning or vice-versa.

Differentiating Facts from Opinions

Parents, teachers, and policymakers are all worried about students' ability to evaluate information that they come across online.

Teaching students how to differentiate a fact from an opinion, how to substantiate a claim they may see on social media, and how to find trusted sources of news are all critical skills now.

Present upto 7 such Techniques Adopted by the Nominee Civics Faculty.

Taking an Active Role in a Democratic Society

Expanding civic education across all disciplines also sends the message that civics itself is integral to life in a democratic society — that no matter what your role or your job, you have opportunities to participate, and to make the system work better for more people.

Taking an active role in society is vital which needs to be taught from a young age.

How does the nominee civics teacher impregnate this idea of taking an active role in a democratic society is further?

Give 7 such activities/areas to this effect.

DOING CIVICS

The point of a good civics education is to 'do civics,'.

A vibrant civics education program should support students in learning to speak up and take action to make a difference.

In what all ways has the Nominee Civics Teacher helped the students get involved?

Present the Details on the following frontiers .

Which all CIVIC & COMMUNITY Organizations have been partnered with for Volunteer Efforts in CIVIC engagement.

What all Collaborative Action Research Projects, where students investigate and address an issue relevant to their communities, enabling them to be problem-solvers and advocates have been engaged with?

What all different type of School Level Challenges have been organized to bring the precepts into practice say Elections, Parliamentary Discourse, New Voter Enrollment, SVEEP Programmes et al.

Student Empowerment Case Studies

Dr. Rajendra Prasad Custodians of Civics 2023

The most important takeaway from a civics program is that every student feels empowered to contribute to their community—and to their country.

Not every young person feels like their voice matters. Civics Education is all about instilling the belief that civic participation is both their right and their duty. And then we should listen and accept their help on issues of consequence in our society.

Present 7 such case studies of Students who got Empowered as a part of the Civics Education imparted by the Nominee Civics Teacher.

Try to provide the Contact Details of the concerned Students or their Parents wherever possible.
